College of Liberal Arts (CLA)

Dean: Harry Hellenbrand
111 Cina Hall, (218) 726-8981

Associate Dean: John Hamlin
104 Cina Hall, (218) 726-6387

The College of Liberal Arts emphasizes the foundations of knowledge and techniques of analysis and expression essential for lifelong learning. Critical thinking, imagination, curiosity, and healthy doubt tempered by wisdom, tolerance, and a sense of humor are attributes of the truly educated individual. The college is dedicated to accomplishing diversity through greater representation of minorities and women in the faculty, staff, and student population as well as through the integration of materials relating to cultural diversity in the curriculum.

The college faculty is committed to the advancement of knowledge through scholarly research and other creative activities. Faculty are encouraged to develop interdisciplinary teaching agendas thus providing students with rich and varied instructional opportunities. The college’s vitality is maintained through the faculty’s commitment to their own research and teaching and dedication to University and community service.

Students are provided the opportunity to develop competence in a particular field of knowledge by learning its principles, history, and perspectives. Skills in written composition and oral communication through public speaking and persuasion are the backbone of the curriculum. Opportunities are provided for study in a wide variety of disciplines in the humanities and social sciences. The CLA offers programs leading to the bachelor of arts degree.

Admission

For information on admission, see Policies and Procedures.

Collegiate Honors

The Campus Assembly has established a policy that a maximum of 15 percent of the graduating class can graduate with collegiate honors. In the CLA, the top 3 percent of the graduating class will be designated summa cum laude, the next 7 percent magna cum laude, and the next 7 percent cum laude.

At the beginning of each year, the GPAs necessary to achieve these honors will be posted in the CLA Student Affairs Office. The GPAs will be established on the basis of the record of the previous spring quarter graduating class. In addition, those receiving honors must have a coefficient of course completion of at least 90 percent. The GPA and coefficient of completion will be calculated on UMD coursework by itself as well as on total undergraduate work, including that completed at other institutions. To be eligible for honors, students must earn at least 45 credits at UMD.

For more information, contact the CLA Student Affairs Office.

Dean’s List of Academic Excellence

Each quarter, CLA students are recognized for high academic achievement by being placed on the CLA Dean’s List of Academic Excellence. A memo is placed on their transcript indicating this achievement. To be eligible for this honor, students must have a quarter GPA of at least 3.50 and 12 graded credits. Incompletes, N’s, and F’s disqualify a student from eligibility.

Department Honors

Department honors are conferred on graduates who have successfully fulfilled the additional requirements of the special honors program in the department offering their major programs. For information, see the statements under American Studies, Communication, English, French, German, History, Humanities and Classics, Philosophy, Political Science, Sociology-Anthropology, and Spanish.

Baccalaureate Degrees

CLA offers the bachelor of arts (B.A.) degree involving traditional liberal arts studies.

Requirements for the B.A.

- Completion of a total of 180 or more degree credits.
- Completion of at least 45 degree credits at UMD.
- Completion of at least 30 of the last 45 credits earned before graduation at UMD.
- Completion of a minimum of 80 credits in upper division courses (numbered 3000 and above).
- A minimum GPA of 2.00 (C) in all work attempted at UMD, successful completion (with grades of A through D, or S) of 75 percent of all work attempted, and a minimum GPA of 2.00 (C) overall (including transfer credits).
- Completion of composition requirement. See the Policies and Procedures section of this bulletin.
- Completion of the liberal education distribution requirements, fulfilling Option A or B below.
- Completion of 8 credits from the cultural diversity and international perspectives course requirements. See the Policies and Procedures section of this bulletin.
- Completion of an approved academic major for the B.A. degree and completion of an approved minor or a second major. A minimum GPA of 2.00 in each major and minor field, including required courses in related fields, is required for graduation. This average applies to all courses in the major and minor taken at UMD calculated separately and also to all courses in the major and minor when transfer credits are included.
- For students completing two or more majors:
  (a) If both majors are approved for the B.A. degree, a total of at least 180 credits for the degree is required. See Majors for the B.A. above.
  (b) If the majors are for different degrees (e.g., a B.A. and a B.S.), students may elect to receive only one degree but have the second major designated on their transcripts. If this option is selected, students must complete the total number of credits required for the degree received.
- If you have not declared your major by the time you reach 90 credits, a hold will be placed on your record.
- Compliance with the general regulations governing the granting of degrees. See All-University Degree Requirements in Policies and Procedures.
Option A
• Completion of the third quarter of the beginning sequence in any second language (or equivalent as established by the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures).
• Completion of a minimum of 48 additional credits in approved liberal education courses. At least 8 credits in each category with a minimum of one non-second language course in Category I. No maximum in any category.

Option B
• Completion of a minimum of 60 credits in approved liberal education courses with a minimum of 8 credits per category. No maximum in any category.

Academic Standing

Good Academic Standing
CLA requires that its students maintain a minimum GPA in order to be in good academic standing. For students who have attempted 40 or more credits, this minimum cumulative GPA is 2.00. Because some students may have difficulty adjusting to the standards and requirements of a college education, students who have attempted a total of 39 or fewer credits (at UMD or elsewhere) must maintain a minimum cumulative GPA of 1.80 to remain in good academic standing.

Probation
Students with a cumulative GPA lower than that required for good academic standing will be placed on academic probation. Once on academic probation, a student will have at least two quarters of day school attendance to attain the required cumulative GPA and avoid dismissal. No credit load restrictions are imposed on students on academic probation. However, they should consider the possibility that a higher GPA might be more easily attained by carrying a lighter load and/or repeating courses in which a D or F was received. Students on probation are strongly encouraged to talk with their adviser.

Dismissal
If a student has been on probation for two quarters in day school, the student is subject to dismissal. The dean decides either to dismiss or to allow another quarter of registration. Students who are dismissed are notified by mail immediately. Their day school registration for the next quarter, financial aid, and on-campus housing contract will be canceled.

Readmission
Students who have been academically dismissed must present evidence of improved academic capability to the college to justify readmission. Petitions for readmission are considered at any time. However, readmission is not normally considered before one year has passed from the date of dismissal, unless circumstances clearly support a decision for early readmission. Readmission is granted whenever deficiencies are made up through University College or summer school. Petition forms and information about academic standing are available in the CLA Student Affairs Office. Students who withdraw voluntarily from school with a GPA below that required for good academic standing are subject to CLA’s guidelines for probation, dismissal, and readmission.

Student Affairs Office
For information and advice on academic matters (such as scholastic standing; admission; advisement; academic programs; change of major, college, or adviser; grievance and appeal procedures), contact the CLA Student Affairs Office, 109 Cina Hall. Forms and petitions are also available in this office.

Preprofessional Programs
The college offers programs and special advising services for students who plan to enter professional schools in law (see Department of Political Science). In addition, some students who plan to attend medical school major in a CLA program (see also Pre-Medicine in the College of Science and Engineering). Variations in curriculum may be arranged upon agreement between the student, preprofessional adviser, and the office of admissions of the pertinent professional school. Students are encouraged to avoid narrow specialization during their undergraduate years.

American Indian Studies (AmIn)

Professors: Robert E. Powless (department head), John Red Horse; Assistant Professor: Lola L. Hill; Instructor: James D. Robinson, Jr.; Teaching Specialist: David Niib Aubid

This department promotes Indian awareness through an examination of the ways in which traditional tribal culture has been maintained, altered, and expressed in present-day Indian life and affairs. The program has been developed by Indian faculty and students and members of the local Indian community. It serves Indian and non-Indian students by broadening their knowledge of traditional and modern Indian history and culture. It is hoped that this promotes, for the Indian student, a positive Indian identity and pride in ancestry. The major (59-60 credits) and the minor (38 credits) provide an opportunity for Indians and non-Indians to pursue in-depth studies in Indian history and culture.

Communication (Comm)
Professor: Michael J. Sunnafrank; Associate Professors: Jackson R. Huntley, Virginia T. Katz, Linda T. Krug (department head), Elizabeth J. Nelson, Gerald A. Pepper, Deborah S. Petersen-Pelman; Assistant Professor: Howard D. Martz (Jour)
The Department of Communication offers a liberal arts major and minor emphasizing the breadth and diversity of the communication field. The required courses cover areas such as public speaking, rhetoric, mass communication theory, and interpersonal communication theory. The journalism program is also housed in the communication department.

Before students can become communication majors or minors, they must first declare a pre-communication major or minor and meet the criteria listed in those sections below.

Honors Program
Candidates must be communication majors with a GPA of at least 3.30 in all communication courses and 3.00 overall. Students must write an honors-quality paper sponsored by a faculty member and approved by an additional faculty member. Candidates must apply before the end of the first quarter of their senior year. See the department head or academic adviser for further details.

Pre-Communication Majors
To be accepted into the communication major, students must declare a pre-communication major and complete Comm 1000, Comm 1112, and Comm 1500 or Jour 1101 with a grade of C or above. If a student chooses to retake any of these three courses, the department will accept the grade in the first retake only. In addition, students must have a 2.50 overall GPA at the time of acceptance.

Students must take an upper division composition course in order to graduate. The communication department accepts any one of the 3xxx composition courses. Communication majors who are journalism minors are not required to take the upper division composition course.

Pre-Communication Minors
To be accepted into a communication minor, students must declare a pre-communication minor and complete Comm 1000, Comm 1112, and Comm 1500 or Jour 1101 with a grade of C or above. If a student chooses to retake any of these three courses, the department will accept the grade in the first retake only. In addition, students must have a 2.50 overall GPA at the time of acceptance.

(See Department of Composition)

Composition (Comp)
Professors: William A. Gibson, Michael D. Linn, Kathryn L. Riley; Associate Professors: Thomas J. Farrell, Greta C. Gaard, Eleanor M. Hoffman, Kenneth C. Risdon (department head)

The Department of Composition is committed to teaching, research, and service in the areas of writing, rhetoric, and linguistics. The department’s primary responsibility is to provide instruction in and encourage the development of student competence in writing. Composition faculty also teach in the areas of linguistics, English, humanities, and related fields in the liberal arts. Courses in the department develop students’ written communication skills. In addition to the required freshman composition courses, upper division writing courses are offered in the areas of business, language and literature, arts and letters, human services, social science, engineering, science, organizational writing, and document design and graphics. Students are required to complete these specialized courses during their junior or senior year. The department offers writing internships and independent study courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels along with graduate seminars in the teaching of writing and in topics relevant to written discourse. An individualized major through the Interdisciplinary Studies Program may be developed.

The UMD composition requirements are described in the Liberal Education Program section of this bulletin.

Professional Writing and Communication Minor

The Departments of Composition and Communication offer a joint minor in professional writing and communication (37-40 credits), which allows students to develop extensive oral and written communication skills relevant to professional situations. The minor emphasizes the development of varied writing and speaking techniques, understanding persuasive argument, and document and speech design and delivery.

Criminology (Crim)
(Sociology-Anthropology)
Advisers: Arthur, Fleischman (Criminology Coordinator), Franz, Grana, Hamlin, Laundergan, Wilson

Criminology concentrates on the study of crime and criminal behavior. The criminology program focuses on crime as a social phenomenon and concentrates on the causes for criminal behavior. The criminology major (60 credits) provides an overview of institutions, issues and causes of crime, and social control. The major offers a strong foundation in liberal arts, a basic knowledge of behavioral sciences, and a strong professional growth potential for those pursuing a career in criminology or the criminal justice system.

Students interested in graduate school will receive a sound educational background in criminology. Students wishing to double major in sociology and criminology must have 30 distinct, non-overlapping credits. Criminology majors selecting a sociology minor must have 12 distinct, non-overlapping credits within the minor.

Pre-Criminology Majors
To be accepted into a criminology major, students must first declare a pre-criminology major and complete Soc 1100, Soc 1300, and Soc 1500, each with a minimum grade of C. If a student chooses to retake any of these courses, the department will accept the grade in the first retake only. In addition, students must have an overall GPA, including transfer credits, of at least 2.50 when they apply to the major. These requirements apply to students who begin their college or university work fall 1995 or later.

English (Engl)

Professors: Harold Hellenbrand, Linda Miller-Cleary, Klaus P. Jankofsky, Joseph C. Maiolo; Associate Professors: Stephen J. Adams, Katherine L. Basham, Carol A. Bock, Martin F. Bock, Roger C. Lips

Course offerings in the Department of English enhance students’ knowledge and appreciation of the literary arts, particularly within the English and American traditions. In survey and period courses, students gain a sense of the literary history that is their heritage; in genre courses they study the development of specific literary forms such as the short story or novel; other courses focus on major writers or issues that are important to an understanding of our literary culture. Students also learn about the nature of language itself in related linguistics courses and gain firsthand experience in literary creation through writing courses offered by the department.

The study of English is useful preparation for many professions, including the practice of law and teaching at both high school and college levels. As a minor or double major, it also enhances career opportunities in fields such as business, writing, publishing, and government service. Students may major or minor in programs leading to the B.A. or to the B.A.A./B.A.S. teaching degrees.

Honors Program

A GPA of at least 3.20 overall and at least 3.40 in the major is required. An honors paper or creative writing project must be completed in a 5xxx course or through independent study. Completed projects and papers must be approved by a sponsoring faculty member and by the department honors committee. Students who wish to qualify for department honors will request an honors project description from the department office at least two quarters before graduation, submit it with the approval of the faculty adviser for the project, and complete the paper or project by a specified time to gain approval of both the project adviser and the department honors committee, before graduation announcement deadlines.

Major (B.A.)

The major in English requires a total of 64 credits. Sixteen of those credits must be at the 5xxx level. English majors who wish to emphasize the study of linguistics are encouraged to minor in linguistics.

The study of foreign languages is recommended for all majors but not required.

Environmental Studies (ES)

(Department of Philosophy)

Coordinators: E. Browning Cole (Phil), Howard Mooers (Geol)

The environmental studies program provides sound interdisciplinary grounding in the natural sciences, social sciences, and humanities, producing graduates who understand and think creatively about the complex issues of our natural, naturalized, and artificial environments. The curriculum encourages cross-disciplinary thinking and problem-solving skills by introducing ethical reflection on questions of culture, resources, and the environment and using literature and the arts to illustrate the ways in which humans have imbued nature with meanings and significance across cultures. Coursework develops skills in research, writing, creative thinking, and sound policy making, as students draw on a range of disciplines to understand and solve specific issues and problems.
The major (86-88 credits) provides a basis for professional careers, as well as graduate studies, in several related environmental fields, while the minor provides students with a general understanding of issues related to their natural environments.

Foreign Languages and Literatures

Professors: Richard A. Seybolt, Eileen M. Zeitz; Associate Professors: Jonathan B. Conant (department head), Yolande I. Jenny, Milan Kovacovic

The department offers majors and minors for the B.A. and B.A.A. degrees in French, German, and Spanish. Instruction in Russian and other languages is offered when feasible. Instruction in Swedish is offered when feasible through the Study in Sweden Program.

French (Fr)

(Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures)

Learning French and studying the literature and culture of the various countries where it is spoken contribute to a sound liberal arts education. Travel and communication technologies are making our planet ever smaller; students who have gained self-knowledge and mutual understanding through studying French enjoy a broader perspective on the world and better understand their own culture.

The following core program in language skills (reading, listening, speaking, writing) is common to all majors and minors in French. Students may be exempted from part or all of the core program requirements if they have previously completed studies in French at the high school or college level. Exemption is negotiated with the department and is based on acceptance of transfer credits, AP scores, or a personal interview to determine placement. Generally, one year of high school work is considered equivalent to one quarter in the university sequence. The Advanced French sequence may be taken concurrently with other upper division courses, except as noted in the course descriptions.

Graduation with Honors
Students who complete an honors project during their senior year and have achieved a GPA of at least 3.30 in all courses they are counting toward the French major may receive department honors and a degree with distinction. This honor is noted on the transcript.

Scholarship
Angela Marinelli Scholarship—Awarded to an advanced student in French or Spanish for study abroad. Check with the department office concerning requirements.

Study Abroad
Students are encouraged to study abroad at some point in their undergraduate career. Credits earned through formal programs may be counted toward a student’s degree.

Oral Proficiency Examinations
Oral proficiency examinations may be administered on request to non-majors at the end of Fr 3002, and if passed, noted on transcript.

Major (B.A.)
New students will not be accepted into this major unless they can complete all required coursework by the end of spring 1998 when the French major will be discontinued; the French minor and teaching French major will still be offered.

This French major (32-64 credits) is for students seeking a traditional liberal arts education. It also serves as a basis for graduate studies and professional schools, or as a supporting field for various careers, particularly in the international area.

Core Program (0-32)
Upper Division (32)
French courses (28 cr); with prior approval of the student’s adviser, a maximum of 8 credits related to the student’s program may be taken in other fields, such as art, history, history, philosophy, political science, or geography. Some of the 28 credits may be transferred from another college or earned abroad, but at least 12 credits should be taken in the UMD French department. Comp 3100—Adv Writ: Lang, Lit (4)

A student majoring in French must pass an oral proficiency examination, which should be taken at the end of Fr 3002. The examination may be repeated.

Minor
Core Program (0-32)
Upper Division (16)
French courses (16 cr); with prior approval of the student’s adviser, a maximum of 4 credits related to the student’s program may be taken in other departments.

Geography (Geog)

Professors: Matti E. Kaups, Graham A. Tobin (on leave 97-98); Associate Professors: Scott M. Freundschu, Lawrence M. Knopp, Jr. (department head); Assistant Professors: Pat Farrell, Gordon L. Levine

The geography major provides professional training for careers related to geography, cartography, and the environment, and academic preparation for graduate work in geography. The minor offers a less extensive concentration in geography. Geography courses are also included in the curriculum of urban and regional studies, earth science, education, and other programs.

The major (58-62 credits) provides students with a strong liberal arts degree that combines the human, physical, and technical aspects of the discipline. The major prepares students for graduate work in geography. The major also trains for employment in government and businesses that require knowledge of geography or the use of geographic techniques. Geography offers career opportunities in environmental assessment, public and private sector planning, travel and tourism, cartography, locational analysis, business and industrial research, teaching, and a variety of other activities that require geographic expertise.

The study of a foreign language is recommended for all geography students but especially for students interested in cultural geography or considering graduate work. The department faculty recommends that majors take coursework in computer science (CS 1501, 1621, 1622, 1623), geology (Geol 1110, 3120, 3200), and research methods or statistics (Soc 1500, 3500, 3520, 3530 or Stat 1565, 3562). Prospective majors are strongly urged to consult their advisers at the earliest possible date to plan their programs and select supporting courses from related fields.
Majors are required to complete a student-initiated senior project. The senior research project, developing ideas generated in courses such as Geog 5611 and 5802, is carried out with the guidance of an individual faculty member under the course Geog 5920—Independent Study. Geog 5920 is taken for 3 or 4 credits, with the project presented orally at a department seminar.

Additional Geog credits to total 29, if needed

German (Ger)

(Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures)

German has been the language of a major world culture for centuries and the traditional language of science and philosophy. Studying German contributes to a sound liberal arts education. As global commerce and communication become the norm, German provides a solid foundation for careers in business, law, human service, and diplomacy.

All major and minor programs in German share the language skills core program of 0-28 credits. Students with previous study may be exempted from part of the core: entering students who have recently met the admission standard in German start in College German I, while others should consult the department about proper placement.

Core Program (0-28)
- Ger 1301-1302—Beginning Ger I-II (8)
- Ger 1501-1502-1503—College Ger I-II-III (12)
- Ger 3001-3002—Advanced Ger I-II (8)

Graduation with Honors

Students who complete an honors project during their senior year and have achieved a GPA of at least 3.30 in all courses they are counting towards the German major may receive department honors and a degree with distinction. This honor is noted on the transcript.

Major (B.A.)

New students will not be accepted into this major unless they can complete all required coursework by the end of spring 1998 when the German major will be discontinued; the German minor and teaching German major will still be offered.

This major (32-60 credits) is for students seeking a traditional liberal arts education. It serves as a basis for postgraduate studies, admission to professional schools in law and business, and as a supporting field for careers in commerce, diplomacy, and human services.
Core Program (0-28)

Upper Division (32)
German courses (28 cr); with prior approval of the student’s adviser, a maximum of 8 credits related to the student’s program may be taken in other departments. Some of the 28 credits may be transferred from another college or earned abroad, but at least 12 must be taken in the department. Comp 3100—Adv Writ: Lang, Lit (4) is recommended, but another course in Adv Writ program may be taken with the consent of the student’s adviser.

Oral Proficiency Exam
Each German major must take and pass the departmental oral proficiency exam. It should be attempted while the student is still in the Adv Ger sequence, and it may be repeated until passed.

Study Abroad
Students are encouraged to study abroad at some point in their undergraduate career. The adviser can recommend suitable programs and help integrate them into the student’s curriculum.

Minor
The minor in German is an attractive addition to a liberal arts degree, and is especially recommended for students in international studies and professional programs such as business, pre-law, and human services.

Core Program (0-28)

Upper Division (16)
German courses (16 cr); with prior approval of the student’s adviser, a maximum of 4 credits directly related to the student’s program may be taken in other departments.

See College of Education and Human Service Professions for program descriptions.

History (Hist)
Professors: Roger A. Fischer, Neil T. Storch, Judith A. Trolander; Associate Professor: Alexis E. Pogorelskin (department head); Assistant Professors: David W. Coleman, Nkasa T. Yelengi

The study of history is vital to a liberal arts education because it provides a holistic approach to knowledge. The study of history broadens students’ understanding of commonality and diversity, the development of cultures, and the drama of the human experience. History touches on the whole range of human heritage. While focusing on the past, it also helps students understand the present and provides a strong foundation for the future. It prepares students for careers that demand analytical and communication skills, critical thinking, and cultural breadth. These careers include law, business, journalism, teaching, government, and the ministry.

Upper Division Placement
With the permission of the major adviser, a student completing a B.A. major in history may be permitted to substitute some 3xxx courses for part of the lower division requirements. The granting of such permission depends on high school preparation and previous academic performance. History courses at the 3xxx level may not be taken during the freshman year and can be taken during the sophomore year only with instructor consent. Accelerated high school programs, except College in the Schools, do not receive college credit in history.

Honors Program for B.A. Majors
Participation in the department honors program requires a GPA of at least 3.30 (B+) in all history courses and department approval of an honors-quality paper. The paper, which may be written in conjunction with a 3xxx or 5xxx course, is evaluated by two members of the history faculty. See the department head or academic adviser for further details.

Major (B.A.)
This major (57-58 credits) introduces students to major world cultures and provides experience in the critical use of historical literature and other source materials.

Lower Division (16)
Any four of the following:
Hist 1207—Dawn of Modern Europe (4)
Hist 1208—Europe in the Modern Age (4)
Hist 1304—American Heritage (4)
Hist 1305—American Challenges (4)
HmCl 1001—Classical Heritage (4)

Upper Division (41-42)
History and other designated elective courses numbered 3xxx or above. Each student must include an advanced course in composition. Comp 3100—Adv Writ: Lang, Lit is recommended; Comp 3110—Adv Writ: Art, Letter and Comp 3160—Adv Writ: Soc Sci are also acceptable. Each student must also take one 5xxx course, either Hist 5008 or Hist 5905 (individual research with a paper required). At least 8 credits must be completed in three of the following categories for a total of 24 credits. The department will accept up to 8 credits from a cognate discipline in categories 2-5 below; see a faculty member for a complete list of possible courses.

1) Ancient and Medieval: HmCl 3007, 3020, 3030, 3040, 3055, 3150, 3160, 3333, Hist 3263
2) Africa/East Asia: Hist 3461, 3462, 3463, 3464, 3510, 3511, ArtH 3807, Pol 3520
3) Western Heritage: Hist 3110, 3111, 3241, 3242, 3245, 3256
4) United States: Hist 3314, 3315, 3316, 3330, 3357, 3361, 3364, 3367

Hist 3005—Special Topics courses may be assigned a category in consultation with the instructor.

The department recommends the study of a foreign language, especially for students who are considering graduate work in history. It also recommends that history majors consult their adviser about selecting elective courses.

Seminar Requirement: Hist 5905 (4)

Students must also complete Hist 5905—History Seminar as a capstone seminar. If scheduling permits, the department urges students to select the seminar with a topic or topics from one of the five areas in which they have concentrated.

Colloquium Requirement: Hist 3500 (1-2)

All majors must attend a series of colloquia in their senior year. Participation is on an S-N basis. Those students making a presentation will be given 2 credits for their participation. The colloquium showcases research by both students and faculty with particular attention to problems of methodology in the discipline.

Internship Option: Hist 3015 (2-6)

Students, in consultation with the department’s internship adviser, may engage in a learning experience either on or off campus that introduces them to practical applications or other methodological issues of history as a discipline.

Minor

This minor (32 credits) provides basic competence in the field and supporting studies for related majors.

Lower Division (12)

Any three of the following:
- Hist 1207—Dawn of Modern Europe (4)
- Hist 1208—Europe in the Modern Age (4)
- Hist 1304—American Heritage (4)
- Hist 1305—American Challenges (4)
- HmCl 1001—Classical Heritage (4)

Upper Division (20)

History and other designated elective courses numbered 3xxx or above. At least 8 credits must be completed in each of two of the following areas: Ancient and Medieval, Africa/East Asia, the Western Heritage, United States, the Modern World (see above for acceptable courses in those categories).

Humanities and Classics (HmCl)

(Department of Sociology/Anthropology)

Director: Bacig; Advisers: Cole (Phil), Marchese (Soc/Anth)

Major (B.A.)

Students may develop an individualized B.A. major in humanities through the Interdisciplinary Studies Program. As an alternative, they may choose one of the more defined interdisciplinary humanities major tracks: Contemporary Humanities, Classical Heritage, and American Studies (see Interdisciplinary Studies).

Minor

The humanities minor (30 credits) acquaints the student with a wide variety of expressions of the human mind and spirit as they appear in the arts, literary sources, and historical documents; aids the student in developing skills for analyzing such human expressions; and provides the student with experiences in interdisciplinary inquiry and using the various expressive arts to investigate some of the basic concerns of humankind.

Lower Division (8-16)

Any two of the three introductory HmCl courses:
- HmCl 1001, 1002, 1003 (8)
Other 1xxx humanities and classics courses (0-8)

Upper Division (14-22)

HmCl 3091—Project in the Hum (2)
Other humanities and classics courses (12-20)

Interdisciplinary Studies (IS)

(Department of Sociology/Anthropology)

Director: H. Hellenbrand; Advisers: T. Bacig, E. Browning Cole, H. Hellenbrand, N. Korby, R. Marchese

Major (B.A.)

The major in interdisciplinary studies (60-93 credits) is for students whose educational objectives can best be realized through an integration of courses from three or more departments. Students who select this major will be required to submit a statement of their educational objectives and a list of proposed courses to the Committee on Interdisciplinary Studies for approval, ordinarily before they complete 90 credits. A minimum of 60 upper division credits in three or more departments, and the IS senior project and seminar are required. Interested students should obtain a descriptive brochure and application form from the interdisciplinary studies office. The appropriate 3xxx advanced writing course will be selected by the committee.

The bachelor of arts requirement of a minor is waived for interdisciplinary studies majors.

Upper Division
IS 3001—Interdis Meth Sem (3)
IS 3050—Senior Project (2-15)
Other approved courses (55-75)

In addition to the individually-designed IS major, the department offers several more structured tracks within the major. These tracks comprise suggested frameworks for integrated study in selected interdisciplinary areas. They do not replace or preclude the option of the individually-designed major, and all requirements for the IS major apply.

American Studies Track

The American Studies track links courses from a variety of disciplines in order to create an integrated major that focuses on the distinctive American social and cultural heritage. Courses explore the American experience from historical, literary, intellectual, social, and cultural perspectives.

The American Studies track requires a minimum of 60 upper-level credits in addition to 28 lower-level credits. Students must submit a statement of their educational objectives and a list of proposed courses to the Committee on Interdisciplinary Studies for approval, usually before the completion of 90 credits. As with other IS majors, the requirement for a minor is waived.

The American Studies minor is also available (see American Studies).

Lower Division (28)

Three courses from the following:
AmS 1030—Landscapes, Am Cult (4)
AmS 1040—Fr Heritage (4)
AmS 1060—Am Im Heritage (4)
Am 1120—Am Indian 20th Cent (4)

Remaining credits should be selected from the following:

Upper Division (Minimum 60)
IS 3001—Interdis Methods Sem (3)
IS 3050—Senior Project (2-15)

Remaining courses should be selected from a minimum of two of the following categories. Directed study and special topics courses may be applied to any appropriate category. In addition, students may select other courses, as approved by their adviser.

Category I: Historical
AmIn 3106—Indian-White Relat (4)

Classical Heritage Track

The Classical Heritage track creates an integrated major that explores the classical heritage from ancient times through the Medieval and Renaissance eras and considers the impact of this heritage in the modern world. The program emphasizes a period of time when diverse cultures and civilizations had a profound effect on the peoples of the Mediterranean basin.

The Classical Heritage track requires a minimum of 60 upper-level credits in addition to 28 lower-level credits. Students must submit a statement of their educational objectives and a list of proposed courses to the Committee on Interdisciplinary Studies for approval, usually before the completion of 90 credits. As with other IS majors, the requirement for a minor is waived.

International studies provides students with a broad understanding of the issues and problems associated with the present-day international scene and the necessary skills to allow them to participate effectively in the affairs of the contemporary global community.

Because of ongoing changes in faculty and curriculum, students should consult the director or other international studies adviser for updated information on courses included in the various categories, fields, and areas listed below.

Major (B.A.)

The major (67-74 credits) provides students with a broad background in contemporary international affairs. It familiarizes students with the basic forms of international behavior and interaction. It also provides students an opportunity to explore global issues and careers from a variety of perspectives and vantage points. The major seeks to equip students with the necessary skills and background to become effective participants in the international arena. International studies majors and minors are encouraged to incorporate a study abroad experience into their programs.

Linguistics (Ling)
(Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures)

Faculty: Conant (Ger) (coordinator), Gibson (Comp), Hatten (CSD), Huntley (Comm), Jankofsky (Engl), Katz (Comm), Kovacovic (Fr), Linn (Comp), Riley (Comp)
The program in linguistics, interdisciplinary in nature, is for students wishing to supplement the work in their major field with a specialized study of language. Areas of interest overlap in anthropology, communication, communication sciences and disorders, education, English, languages, philosophy, psychology, and sociology. The program offers a minor in linguistics, a B.A. in English with emphasis on linguistics (see English), and a designated minor for the master’s program.

Minor

The minor (30 credits) develops the student’s understanding of the nature of language. Studies include direct applications in job-related areas, such as language instruction and human relations. The minor provides background for graduate work in a variety of disciplines.

Required for the minor are 30 credits in core and related courses (listed below), of which a minimum of 20 credits must be earned from the list of core courses. Ling 1811, an overview of linguistics, should be one of the first courses taken.

Core Courses

Philosophy (Phil)

Professors: James H. Fetzer, Gerald F. Gaus (Pol), David J. Mayo; Associate Professors: David J. Cole, Eve Browning Cole, Robert H. Evans; Assistant Professor: Richard Hudelson

Department of Philosophy courses familiarize students with the history of philosophy and help them develop problem-solving skills using critical thinking. Beginning courses provide a comprehensive introduction to the methods and procedures of analytical reasoning by examining issues concerning the nature of knowledge and reality, the existence of freedom, logic, and the character of right and wrong. Advanced courses focus on special historical periods (e.g., Greek philosophy, early modern philosophy) and specific problem areas (e.g., philosophy of religion, medical ethics, philosophy of language). Principles that emerge from the study of philosophy concern the nature of reasoning as it applies to all areas of investigation within the humanities, natural sciences, and social sciences. As a result, studying philosophy enhances all majors and minors.

Honors Program

Candidates must be philosophy majors with a GPA of at least 3.30 in all philosophy courses. Each student must complete 4 credits of work in Phil 5990 and must write a substantial paper in Phil 5990 or another philosophy course. The paper must be presented orally in a department colloquium. See the department head for further details.

Major (B.A.)

The philosophy major (45 credits) acquaints students with major figures and problems, both traditional and contemporary, in our intellectual heritage and develops skills in critical thinking.

Political Science (Pol)
Professors Emeritus: M. Harry Lease, Jr., Dale W. Olsen, Julius F. Wolff, Jr.; Professor: Gerald F. Gaus; Associate Professors: Elizabeth A. Bartlett, Stephen P. Chilton, Craig H. Grau, G. Paul Sharp (department head); Assistant Professors: Cindy M. Christian, John H. Kress, Christopher M. McMahon

The Department of Political Science offers a major and minor to prepare students for careers in government and business, the study of law, and graduate work in political science, domestic and international public policy, and related fields. It furnishes general coursework for liberal education purposes, upper division coursework for students majoring in other disciplines, and a related field for students in graduate programs at UMD. Department courses apply to the majors in urban and regional studies, international studies, women’s studies, criminology, and social studies teaching; to the minors in international studies, journalism, women’s studies, and social science (elementary) teaching; and to the degrees of bachelor of accounting and bachelor of business administration.

Students are provided considerable flexibility in designing their major (60 credits) to ensure it meets personal and professional interests and needs. They should consult closely with their department adviser to define the focus and coverage of their program. The department also recommends careful selection of courses in other disciplines including second majors and minors. Students are encouraged to acquire collateral skills in areas such as statistics, computer applications, and foreign languages. At least 12 credits in political science must be taken at UMD.

The minor (32 credits) can be designed specifically to supplement major programs in related disciplines or more broadly to develop the political awareness, background, and critical faculties requisite to responsible citizenship. At least 12 credits in political science must be taken at UMD.

Students interested in graduate education should begin planning in their junior year. In consultation with their department adviser, they should carefully examine possible fields and degree programs as well as admission requirements. Many programs expect proficiency in statistical analysis and/or a foreign language.

Honors Program
The department offers exceptional political science majors further opportunities to pursue academic and professional excellence through an honors study program. Admission to the honors program requires a 3.10 GPA in political science courses. To obtain honors, students must complete Pol 3910, 3940, 3950, or 3960 in their junior year with a grade of at least B+; in their fourth year prepare an honors-quality paper in a 5xxx political science seminar or Pol 5111, 5411, 5511 or 5611 (4 credits); and at the time of application for graduation have a 3.10 GPA in political science courses. Graduation with honors requires a total of 60 credit hours of political science courses. See the department head for more information.

Pre-Law

Advisers: Political Science faculty

Because entrance requirements differ among law schools, prospective law students should obtain information from the law schools they expect to apply to as early as possible. Students should be aware that successful completion of the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) is a requirement for admission to most law schools. The Department of Political Science and the Career Services office maintain files of information on law schools and provide LSAT materials to students. They also hold informational meetings during the year with representatives of law schools.

Admission to law school requires a bachelor of arts (B.A.) degree or its equivalent. Well-balanced bachelor of science and bachelor of business administration programs are accepted as the equivalent of the B.A. degree by most law schools.

Although law schools do not recommend any particular major, pre-law students may find a variety of majors useful, including economics, history, political science, philosophy, humanities, English, sociology, psychology, mathematics, physical sciences, anthropology, geography, journalism, communication, modern languages, international studies, or women’s studies.

Each student’s education should be as broad as possible. Electives should be chosen in areas outside the major field to develop and demonstrate multiple competencies in varying subject areas and methods. Double majors are increasingly recommended, particularly where they complement substantive knowledge with analytical skills.

Law schools attach special importance to training that helps students express themselves in the English language forcefully, effectively, and accurately. Whatever the specialty, a professional career in law requires the communication of ideas and information through words. Success in law school, as well as in subsequent professional practice, depends to a great extent on the capacity for effective writing and speaking. Therefore, students are encouraged to take courses that require considerable reading, writing, and independent thinking, and they should develop through coursework or activities their capacity for expressing themselves orally. Knowledge of the principles of accounting is also helpful.

Sociology/Anthropology (Soc/Anth)

Professors: Thomas D. Bacig, William A. Fleischman, Ronald T. Marchese, J. Clark Laudergeran, Michael D. Linn (Comp), George R. Kapp, Jr. (Regents’ Professor of Geological Archeometry), Timothy G. Roufs, David M. Smith; Associate Professors: John A. Arthur, Linda S. Belote, Robert E. Franz (department head), Frederic W. Hafferty (Med), John E. Hamlin, Uwe H. Stuecher (Psy); Assistant Professors: Sheryl J. Grana, Sharon F. Kemp, Janelle L. Wilson

The department offers four majors for the baccalaureate degree (anthropology, criminology, interdisciplinary studies, and sociology). Students are urged to consult with a member of the department to plan a program of undergraduate study, explore career choices, and consider the possibility of graduate study.

For information about interdisciplinary studies major requirements, see Interdisciplinary Studies (IS).
The anthropology curriculum focuses on the development and diversity of peoples of the world. It provides a cross-cultural perspective supportive of other disciplines and areas of study, prepares students for graduate study in anthropology or another social science, and provides a general understanding of people living at different times in different places. A student may either major or minor in anthropology. Students interested in anthropology, archaeology, or ethnohistory should consult an anthropology faculty member to plan a program. Students interested in linguistics should consult with a linguistics faculty member.

For more details concerning requirements of an anthropology major, see Anthropology (Anth).

Criminology concentrates on the study of crime and criminal behavior. The criminology program focuses on crime as a social phenomenon and concentrates on the causes for criminal behavior. The major offers a strong foundation in liberal arts, a basic knowledge of behavioral sciences, and a strong professional growth potential for those pursuing a career in criminology or the criminal justice system. Students interested in graduate school will receive a sound educational background in criminology. For more details concerning requirements for a criminology major, see Criminology (Crim).

The sociology curriculum focuses on the relationships between social structure and the dynamics of establishing, maintaining, and changing patterns of human social behavior. It is built around a theoretical-methodological core. These core courses are integrated to develop students’ conceptual and research competence. Courses dealing with social psychology, social organization, social change, and criminology provide the substantive curriculum in sociology. The major is liberal arts-based, providing a background for human service and business employment and preparation for related graduate and professional schools. Requirements for a sociology major are discussed below.

Prospective majors, especially those considering graduate work, are strongly urged to consult their advisers at the earliest possible date to plan their programs and to select supporting courses from related fields.

Honors Program

The department honors program recognizes majors who demonstrate outstanding academic performance, provides special educational opportunities for such students, and encourages the development of specialty areas within each major. Honors students participate in independent research, working closely with a faculty member. Qualified majors may apply to participate in the honors program any time after they have completed Soc 3520 or 3530, and one appropriate advanced theory course (Soc 3305, Soc 3400, or Anth 5626). Students must apply before the end of the sixth week of their first quarter of their senior year. Further information about the honors program can be obtained from any department faculty member.

Pre-Sociology Majors

To be accepted into a sociology major, students must first declare a pre-sociology major and complete Soc 1100, Soc 1400, and Soc 1500, each with a minimum grade of C. If a student chooses to retake any of the three courses, the department will accept the grade in the first retake only. In addition, students must have an overall GPA, including transfer credits, of at least 2.50 at the time of application to the major. These requirements apply to students who begin their college or university work fall 1995 or thereafter.

Sociology Major (B.A.)

Advisers: Arthur, Fleischman, Franz, Grana, Hamlin, Laundergan, Wilson

The sociology major (59 credits) for the B.A. emphasizes empirical and critical analysis of social phenomena.

Students wishing to double major in sociology and criminology must have 30 distinct, non-overlapping credits.

- or Soc 3845—Bureaucracy, Society (4)
Electives (20)
20 sociology or anthropology elective credits to complete required 59 credits. At least 36 of the 59 must be in courses numbered 3xxx or above

* Maximum 6 credits Soc 3121 may be applied to the 59-credit major.

Pre-Sociology Minor
To be accepted into a sociology minor, students must first declare a pre-sociology minor and complete Soc 1100, Soc 1400, and Soc 1500, each with a minimum grade of C. If a student chooses to retake any of the three courses, the department will accept the grade in the first retake only. In addition, students must have an overall GPA, including transfer credits, of at least 2.50 at the time of application to the minor. These requirements apply to students who begin their college or university work fall 1995 or thereafter.

Sociology Minor
The minor requires 37 credits. Criminology majors selecting a sociology minor must have 12 distinct non-overlapping credits.

Lower Division (13)
- Soc 1100—Soc, Social Problems (5)
- Soc 1400—Dev of Soc Theory (4)
- Soc 1500—Intro SS Res Meth (4)

Upper Division (24)
24 sociology or anthropology elective credits; at least 12 in sociology courses

Spanish (Span)
(Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures)
Learning Spanish and studying the literature and culture of the various countries where it is spoken contribute to a sound liberal arts education. Studying Spanish is increasingly important as it becomes the second language of the United States. Students gain a better understanding of varied cultures and a broader world perspective. Spanish is useful for preparing for teaching, graduate or professional work, business careers, and professions involving international work.

The following core program in language skills (reading, listening, speaking, writing) is common to all majors and minors in Spanish. Students may be exempted from part or all of the core program requirements if they have previously completed studies in Spanish.

Exemption is negotiated with the department and is based on acceptance of transfer credits or personal interview. The advanced Spanish sequence may be taken concurrently with other upper division courses, except as noted in the course descriptions.

Core Program (0-28)
- Span 1301-1302—Beginning Span I-II (8)
- Span 1501-1502-1503—College Span I-II-III (12)
- Span 3001-3002—Adv Span I-II (8)

Graduation with Honors
Students who complete an honors project during their senior year and have achieved a GPA of at least 3.30 in all Spanish major courses may receive department honors and receive a degree with distinction. This honor is noted on the transcript.

Scholarship
Angela Marinelli Scholarship—Awarded to an advanced student in French or Spanish for study abroad. Check with the department office concerning requirements.

Oral Proficiency Examinations
Oral proficiency examinations may be administered on request to non-majors at the end of Span 3002, and if passed, noted on transcript.

Major (B.A.)
The Spanish major (36-64 credits) is for students seeking a traditional liberal education. It also serves those who plan to continue their education in graduate school or in a professional program such as library science or law or those who hope to work in government or with agencies and businesses having international ties.

Core Program (0-28)

Upper Division (36)
32 credits of Spanish courses; with prior approval of the student’s adviser, a maximum of 5 credits directly related to the student’s program may be taken in other departments. Some of the 32 credits may be transferred from another college or earned abroad, but at least 12 must be taken in the department.
- Comp 3100—Adv Writ: Lang, Lit (4)

A student majoring in Spanish must pass an oral proficiency examination, which should be taken at the end of Span 3002. The examination may be repeated.
Minor
This minor (16-44 credits) is for students seeking to strengthen language skills while completing a liberal education program.

Coordinator: Knopp (Geog); Advisers: Das (Psy), Fleischman (Soc), Jesswein (Econ), Laundergan (Soc), Levine (Geog), Lichty (Econ), Rubenfeld (MgtS), Syck (Acct), Trolander (Hist)

This program, which draws on the resources of many departments, is in part preparation for entry-level positions in planning, administrative, and problem-solving agencies at city, county, regional, state, and federal levels. Upon completion of the program, students may pursue graduate work in urban affairs, planning, public administration, and related disciplines. The program aids students seeking insight into the complexities of life in urban America. It enhances an understanding of the forces that shape life in cities and their adjacent regions throughout the world.

Major (B.A.)
The urban and regional studies major requires 109-110 credits. Note: All B.A. degree candidates must complete 80 upper division credits for graduation. No minor is necessary.

Women’s Studies (WS)

Associate Professors: Greta Gaard, Tineke Ritmeester
(department head); Advisory Board: Bartlett (Pol), Christian (Pol), Grana (Soc), Hart (Engl/WS), Keeney (Hlth), Kramer (SW), Maddy (Psy), Nelson (Comm), Pelayo-Woodward (Equity Programs), Petersen-Perlman (Comm), Trolander (Hist), Ward (Chancellor’s Office)

Women’s studies is an interdisciplinary program that builds awareness of the diverse cultural, historical, and social experiences of women. Courses emphasize women’s intellectual and creative contributions, sensitize people to women’s issues, demonstrate the significance of gender distinctions in our lives, and develop the student’s ability to interpret and study questions within academic disciplines from a feminist perspective. Women’s studies courses are taught and taken by both sexes.

Students interested in this field can earn an undergraduate major or minor or undergraduate and graduate elective credits. Coursework in women’s studies stimulates critical thinking and broadens perspectives, provides a basis for graduate work in this or other fields, fulfills personal needs for self-understanding and social awareness, and is an excellent liberal arts preparation for future employment. A women’s studies background proves beneficial in many fields such as law, social work, education, the health professions, international and government service, business, counseling, and journalism.

Major (B.A.)

The women’s studies major requires a minimum of 54 credits. Prospective majors are urged to consult the Department of Women’s Studies at the earliest possible date to plan a focus appropriate to the student’s educational and career goals.
